Arts Education

Martin County students have an advantage. As other school districts across the state have reduced and eliminated arts education, our schools have a continued tradition of strong arts programs at every level. Our schools and their students are winning awards at every turn; examples include both MCHS, OPUS and JBHS Jubilate's Heritage Awards and the selection two years running of a JBHS visual arts student as Congressman Rooney's Congressional Art Award winner.

How is this level of arts achievement possible? One reason: dedicated teachers. Several such as Judy Nordenbrock, Robbie Roadman, and Tom Prestopnik have retired in the last several years to be joined by Tom Wetzl this year. However many remain steadfast in their efforts to inspire their students to be the best, to include Jimmy Paul, Krystal Wion-Eckhardt, Anne Marie Schwartz, Ron Corbin, and Tracy Canada.

It gives us great hope as we look forward with optimism for what these students will bring to the world either as practicing artists or as leaders with an innovative and creative spirit for finding solutions to the challenges that face our society. The Council remains committed in its efforts to promote, encourage, and enhance programs countywide for arts education. Throughout this issue of MartinArts are great examples of the creativity found in our local schools.

We invite you to take a look and see for yourself.

Outstanding Student Performing Artist
 One of the many talented nominees for a 2011 mARTies Award, Kevin Connor is a skilled and versatile young performer with multiple awards and accomplishments to his credit as he leaves Martin County for the larger venue of Boston. While attending MCHS, Kevin worked behind the scenes as crew, onstage as an actor, as a singer with OPUS, organizing and performing in fund-raising events and running Drama Club meetings. He taught piano to children and adults in the community and sang in the Christ Memorial Chapel Choir while entertaining twice a month for the Stuart Nursing and Restorative facility - and maintaining a 3.98 GPA. He is about to take the Boston Conservatory by storm.

Outstanding Student Visual Artist
 Ariana will be attending Brown University/ RISD this fall after being graduated from the Clarke Advanced Learning Center. Her artistic skills led her to win a Gold Key from the Scholastic Art Awards, Best of Show at the IRSC Annual Digital Media Show. Ariana was awarded a grant from Character Counts which funded her after-school art programs for children with Autism Spectrum disorders. Ariana also spearheaded a fundraiser for Helping People Succeed, The Taste of Success, which augurs good things for her future. Ariana is passionate about enriching her community and Martin County has been fortunate to nurture her talents.

Tom Winter

Congressional Art Award 2011
 Thomas' photo, Wave Action, a thrilling sunrise seen from a storm-tossed beach, was chosen by Congressman Tom Rooney for the Congressional Art Competition for 2011. Each spring, a nation-wide high school art competition is sponsored by the U.S. House of Representatives. The contest is an opportunity to encourage and recognize the artistic talent from around the nation, as well as our Congressional District. This annual competition is open to all district high school students. Thomas is a student at JBHS, and also won a photo contest this year at the Environmental Studies Center. Wave Action will be displayed for one year in the U.S. Capitol in Washington.

Congressional Art Award 2010
 Kelsea, a recent graduate of JBHS, is an award-winning fiber artist. Her quilts reflect the many hours she spends in the careful design and execution of complex sewing techniques, with strong colors, imagery and composition. Her works are not traditional home-spun pieces. She is a 21st century artist who has been recognized with a Congressional Art Award and a Gold Key from the Scholastic Art Awards. Kelsea volunteered her time and talents for the Invisible Children Art Auction, the Stuart Beach Community Mural and the American Cancer Society. Kelsea will be attending the School of the Arts in Palatka, continuing her studies in Fiber Art.

21st Annual Court House Cultural Center Juried Exhibition

The 21st Annual Court House Cultural Center Juried Exhibition will be chaired by Noreen Stewart, Cheryl Ritland and Maggie Griner. All artists residing in Florida are eligible to apply through CaFÉ.

A link to the artist call is located in the Calls to Artists section under Resources, at www.martinarts.org. A non-refundable entry fee of $30.00 covers 1 image per artist. A maximum of three images may be submitted per artist, with a $5.00 fee for each additional image. Applications, fees and images must be received by CaFÉ on Sunday, July 24, 2011 by 12:00 midnight to be considered.

CaFÉ, www.CallForEntry.org, is an online application and adjudication system for exhibitions, art fairs, festivals and shows.

Juror for the exhibition is Florida artist Jill Cannady. Cannady's recent artwork, The Naturalists, is a series of drawings and encaustic paintings.

The Opening Reception and Awards will take place on Friday, September 23, 2011, from 5:30 - 7:00 PM. Awards will be presented by the juror at the reception. The exhibition continues through Thursday, November 17, 2011.

Women Supporting the Arts (WSA)

a women's giving circle, announced its recent grant awards for artists and arts-related programs. Thirteen projects were selected totaling $16,000 from among the nearly $60,000 requested from twenty-three proposals.

In addition to these grants, Women Supporting the Arts also allocated $10,000 to a future public art project in the environs of Memorial Park and the Martin County Court House Cultural Center. WSA welcomes grant applications from organizations and individuals who present cultural programs for Martin County. Visit martinarts.org, Quick Link to WSA.

The deadline for 2011 applications is September 30, 2011. WSA's mission is to build a community of women philanthropists who inspire, educate and encourage women to strengthen the arts and cultural environment in Martin County.

WSA is affiliated with the Arts Foundation of Martin County and the Arts Council. Membership is open to all women with a $1000 minimum contribution. For more information, contact Nancy Turrell at The Arts Council, Inc., nturrell@martinarts.org.

Demolition Making way for the New Elliott

Construction of the New Elliott Museum began on June 1, 2011 with demolition of the old building which is expected to be completed by mid-June. A concrete slab is scheduled to be poured in July, launching the beginning of the new 44,000 square foot museum, a venue that will be twice the size of the old building. Scheduled to reopen in early 2013, the museum will meet requirements for traveling exhibitions.

For five decades, the Elliott Museum, owned and operated by the Historical Society of Martin County, has served as a cultural and educational resource for thousands of residents, tourists, automotive and baseball enthusiasts. A non-profit organization dedicated to preserving and interpreting our region's history, the mission of the Elliott Museum is to interpret and celebrate the genius of innovation, creativity and the historical events in Martin County and the surrounding region, all within an environment of learning and discovery.

Jennifer & Peter Jones: StarStruck and Following Their Dreams

Last month, Jennifer and Peter Jones announced the exciting news that StarStruck, their theatre and training center, was moving to a new location: the former Palm Beach Post Newspaper building in Stuart. This new space means a new performance theatre and workshop space in this culture-hungry community.

Currently, StarStruck produces over 10 shows per year—a number that will increase in their new facility.

The new building is about 12,000 square feet and will house all of StarStruck's training classrooms, private music studios and rehearsal areas, as well as a 200 seat state-of-the-art theatre with a lobby and adjoining backstage area for dressing rooms, costumes, props and scenery storage. StarStruck hopes to provide a venue that is affordable and accessible to the community at large. Non-Profit and For-Profit organizations will now have the ability to produce a variety of events including, but not limited to band concerts, improv troupes, cabaret shows, school recitals, innovative arts programming and more.

Inspired By...

A series with our artists to inspire our creativity and connect us with our passions!

As the second of our new, exclusive series, Inspired By... welcomed Jill Sonke Henderson, director of the Center for Arts in Healthcare at the University of Florida, and Jenny Lee, director of Creative Clay to the brand new StarStruck Performing Arts Center.

Jill and Jenny were interviewed by Janeen Mason about the many lives they have impacted both here in their Florida-based programs, as well as an international missions in Africa. Jill captivated the audience with a beautiful story of healing through dance with one of her patients who suffers from sickle cell disease. Nearly 50 members and guests attended this full-to-capacity event. Many thanks to our hosts, Peter & Jennifer Jones for letting us meet in their dance studio.

In Vivid COLOR

Lighting up the Court House Cultural in vivid color is a new lighting system installed by Electrical Connections who partnered with Bright Ideas LED.

The new state-of-the-art system, currently set to rotate in all the colors of the rainbow, brings new attention to the historic building at night! Already new daytime visitors have be heard to say, "I came in today because I noticed the building last night when it was lit up."

Mike Pettengill of Electrical Connections said, "We wanted to make this historic art deco building more visible, highlighting its unique architectural details and creating more awareness of its artistic functions."

Nancy Turrell, executive director of the Arts Council said, "the lighting, combined with the extensive landscaping installed two years ago during Stuart's entry in the America in Bloom contest, has improved our curb appeal. We are grateful that local businesses like Electrical Connections and Kenny Teardo's landscape company are so willing to give back to us and the community." She added, "now all we need are some beautiful benches to allow visitors to relax and enjoy the courtyard."

The Court House Cultural Center is on the National Register of Historic Places and was built in 1937. To learn more about its former uses, visit the photo gallery located on the landing inside the Court House Cultural Center. The Center is open Tuesday-Friday, 10 AM to 4 PM and Saturday, 11 AM to 2 PM.

Gala Grand Opening of Allegro

More than 100 people gathered on April 29 to celebrate the Treasure Coast arrival of a community acclaimed for transforming senior living.

Arts and culture served as the centerpiece of the grand opening gala for Allegro, who donated all proceeds for the event to the Arts Council. Guests were entertained with music by jazz vocalist Sybil Gage as well as performances by the Bach Children's Orchestra.

The audience included notables such as Jim Simoneau, chairman of the Arts Council's board; Stuart City Commissioners Mike Mortell, Eula Clarke and Troy MacDonald; Martin County Commissioners Patrick

Hayes, Doug Smith and Ed Ciampi; Steve Leighton, Rep. Tom Rooney's Treasure Coast congressional liaison, and others.

"We are excited to be partnering with Allegro in the spirit of the arts which is a shared passion," enthused Nancy Turrell, executive director of the Arts Council.
